

Families with their rights damaged as generators of their own work. Familias con derechos vulnerados como generadoras de su propio trabajo.

Cecilia A. Serra

Ministerio de Desarrollo Social, Santa Fe, Argentina

Abstract Summary:

Introduction: Since 2008, with the new province administration, it has been settled, as a Social Policy, working with families with their rights damaged and the access to community. The intervention is focused on the work as a right, and this as a part of the development of people and the place where they live. Objectives: To strengthen the development of self-employed workers, promoting association and support. To include unemployed people in productive enterprises, which have to do with the territory profile in which they live. Description: The work is outlined as constructing citizenship. It is necessary to make a diagnosis of the territory concerning society, production, institutions and education. Detecting people with institutional and policy reference to articulate the interventions, to favor the community networks that should support the territory development and the work with the families. At the same time, it detects enterprising families and within them the enterprising member, standing out its knowledge. The participation of the different people involved and the collective construction is promoted. Territory should be reorganized in relation to the productive enterprises, increasing the capacities and skills of the enterprising. This way it develops a new territory profile that includes them and favors the complete performance of citizenship, guarantying their rights. Results: 14 approached localities, including 462 families that manage 305 enterprises. Allow people to access to a work where they can stake their knowledge and be part of the development of their territory. Conclusion: To think about territory development, and its productive profile as a way of including families whose rights had been damaged, with an integral view and placing the family as the generator of its own rights, requires intervention in different ways, and searching new strategies in order to be able to apply them. Contribution to the Practice of Occupational Practice: It makes possible the formation of partners, the construction of indicators that evaluates the results in an empiric way, promoting changes in the practice, as well as in the implementation of new social policies.