

Una revisión conceptual y epistemológica de la actividad de registrar

E Capdevila<sup>1</sup>, G Capel<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Escola Universitària Creu Roja, Terrassa, Spain, <sup>2</sup>universidad nacional de quilmes, Quilmes, Argentina

Introduction

For the professionals of the health it is indispensable to have a good record that allows to realize a collection efficient and ordained as the information of interest, to improve the professional communication, to identify answer patterns and to validate the realized work. This study tries to constitute a look epistemológica of the conception of registering, based on a process of the knowledge between the subject - object cognoscente and a legal formulating, basic document for the evaluation, investigation improving the quality of the assistance.

Targets

To realize a historical-conceptual review and epistemológica of the activity to register.
To describe the common criteria in the systems of collection of information cost for the evaluation, investigation and the progress of the quality of the service of occupational therapy.

Methods

The review incluye: historia of the occupational therapy in papers, ethical and legal aspects. Analysis of the concepts epistemológicos in the construction of the activity to register, thinking it like the action to look and to store information, from a philosophical look to obtain knowledge. Information system based on context of realities, politics and models.

Results

Universal standards accepted for official documents exist or of associations, textbooks and curricula. Others directed to unify the practice and to describe the acceptable minimums for correct papers of the services. There are valid instruments submitted to continuous reviews and contributions to obtain a better adaptation versus models or theories, contexts or populations, respecting the frames of work, ambiances, systems or institutions.

Conclusion

It is important to identify the bases on the available records at present in occupational therapy, as regards his history and epistemology. The information record supposes a useful instrument to guarantee the welfare quality, a base to construct knowledge and science.

Contribution to the practice/base evidencial of the occupational therapy

He supposes a useful review for the professional reflection and a contribution to our identity. It provides basic specific information of pursuit of the course and evolution of the users; bearing in mind the diversity of needs and limitations of every service or institution and the context of the system sociosanitario, to establish rules of record and unification of common, useful and valid criteria for the evidence of the procedure.